FOR PRESIDENT JUDGE OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS OF THE 51ST JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

DONALD P. McPHERSON,
Gettysburg.

SUBJECT TO THE NON PARTISAN PRIMARY.

In announcing my candidacy for President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the 51st Judicial District, I wish to thank my friends who, without regard to party, have so generously expressed their approval of it and to assure every voter of Adams and Fulton counties that I shall appreciate his suffrage and support.

The Judgeship is now non-partisan—made so especially by Act of Assembly—and if nominated and elected to that high office it will be my endeavor to observe the spirit of that act and to administer the duties of the office with fidelity and impartiality, to the end that the law may be enforced and justice done.

DONALD P. McPHERSON
July 1, 1915.

Though heavy receipts from stamp, corporation and income taxes have added to funds in the Federal Treasury, the balance on hand at the close of business Saturday, June 19, was only $25,519,973.00 as compared with a balance of $137,512,682.86 on the same date two years ago, when Republican laws were in control of revenues and expenditures. The deficit, as represented by the excess of all disbursements over all revenues for the fiscal year up to June 19 was $120,761,159.81.

PURE FOOD LAW

No other national legislation within the last quarter of a century has done more to protect and promote the health of the American people and prevent financial loss through fraud and deception than has the national pure food law, which was enacted in 1906 by a Congress that was Republican in both branches, and signed by a Republican President. This law was peculiarly a Republican idea for it asserted the power of the general government to enact legislation of this kind, a power which was denied by Democrats who were advocates of the doctrine of States rights. President Wilson apparently overlooked this law when he said recently that the Republican party had not had a new idea in thirty years. The only votes cast against the bill were by Democrats, and one of those was by Congressman A. S. Burleson, of Texas, now Postmaster General, the only member of that Congress specially honored by President Wilson.

While commonly referred to as a "pure food law" the act regulates the manufacture and sale of not only food but drugs, confectionery, medicines, and liquors; insures purity, prevents misbranding, prohibits adulteration, requires full weight and measure, and forbids use of poisonous and deleterious substances.

The law requires that if certain habit forming drugs be contained in a medicinal preparation, that fact shall be plainly stated on the label and that the quantity of alcohol contained in medicine be specified. It prohibits removing part or all of the contents of a receptacle and substitution of another article different from that indicated on the package. In the case of foods put up in packages, it requires that the weight or measure be specified on the label. Sale or packing partly decomposed meats is forbidden. All these provisions were necessary for the protection of public health and for the prevention of fraud in the manufacture and sale of food and drugs.

The enactment of the pure food law was largely due to the persistent recommendations of a Republican president. The bill which became a law was introduced in the Senate by a Republican Senator, Hayburn, of Idaho, and although it had only four negative votes in that branch of Congress, those four votes were recorded by Democrats.

The bill met more vigorous opposition in the House where a minority report was filed against it by Representatives Adamson, Bartlett and Russell. Democratic members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, who asserted that pure food legislation is a matter within the jurisdiction of the several states, and not within the jurisdiction of the general government.

Only seventeen members of the House had the temerity to vote against the bill but every one of these was a Democrat. The Pure Food bill was one new Republican idea that they couldn't approve.

WRITES ABOUT CAMP

Frances Turner's Essay on Camp Fire Girls' Outing is Chosen Winner

The Jenny Wren Camp Fire Girls, who have been on an outing at Table Rock for the past week, will break camp today, after a most enjoyable vacation along the creek. The jolly good time they had and their regret to leave the camping place, is told in an essay written by Frances Turner, one of the members. Miss Frances Fritchey, who is in charge of the girls, had each one write an account of their trip and Miss Turner's story was picked as the best. It is printed below:

The Gettysburg Camp Fire Girls of Camp Conewago are having such a good time that they would like their friends to know about it. We have had unusually good weather since we have been here. We are all learning to swim. Most of the girls can swim on their backs and now they are trying the side stroke. The reason why we get along so well is because we are sure no one will duck us or let us go under when we are learning.

We also wade and fish when we want to. We have had several thunder storms but did not mind them as we all gathered at headquarters, played rousing games and told funny stories.

We have had excellent meals and we go for them as the soldiers do, single file and each in his turn. We have been studying the trees, wild flowers, weeds and birds, also have been learning the bird calls. We hear very many out here—Bobolink, Whipperwill, Bobwhite, Oriole and many others. In the morning they used to waken us at four o'clock, but we soon got used to them.

The girls have gotten a great many honors for nature study as well as for pitching the tents and for making out-of-door cooking devices. The sunsets here are wonderful and beautiful, and the reflections on the water are lovely. We have had a full moon most of the week and that has added to the beauty.

We are not afraid at night because Polly, the camp dog, is very vigilant but in spite of her watchfulness a ham bone disappeared one night. Last night was the most beautiful thing of all—Our out-of-door Council Fire by fire light. All of the girls are now Wood-gathers and two have the highest rank of all—that of Torch-bearer. We sang our Camp Fire songs and our visitors said the whole ceremony was lovely. Tomorrow we must break camp, and we all wish it would rain so that we could stay longer.

Reason and Instinct.

A certain north country miner was particularly proud of a clever little dog he possessed. At times he was apt to claim a little too much for his pet, and one morning a neighbor was endeavoring to point out the difference between instinct and reason when an amusing interruption occurred. A seedy looking tramp turned the corner, and the dog, without so much as a word from his master, sprang into the road and offered battle.

"There you are," laughed the miner as the dog snarped and snarled around the heels of the tramp. "E don't like the looks of the chap. That's instinct." Suddenly the tramp turned and kicked the dog into an adjacent field.

"There you are," ejaculated the miner's friend grimly. "The chap don't like the looks of the dog. An' that's reason."—London Tit-Bits.

A Priceless Idol.

It is a part of the creed of Mohammedans to smash the noses of all idols they may come across. When they invaded India they defaced in this way every Hindu god. A figure of Vishnu, a green jade was buried in the bed of the Ganges during this invasion and is now preserved in a temple in Benares. It is the only perfect image left of all the old idols, and its sanctity is such that the priests at Allahabad have offered for it its weight in gold, together with two magnificent rubies, formerly the eyes of Buddha. But they cannot buy it.

Wasted Effort.

At a fire recently a brave fireman came gasping and panting from the burning building with his eyebrows singed in the flames. Under one arm he carried a small but heavy box, which he deposited in a place of safety with the air of a man who had saved a box of government bonds from destruction. On opening the box it was found to contain six bottles of a new patent fire extinguisher.—Argonaut.

RIOTING FANS CAUSE SOME DISTURBANCE AT FREDERICK

Rowdism on the part of several Hagerstown fans alleged to have been drunk, who hurled vile epithets at Umpire Hanks in today's game between the Hustlers and Hagerstown, caused some commotion in the stands when Mayor Fraley and the police attempted to eject them from the field. They were finally quieted without any personal injury to anyone concerned. This was all that marred the quiet of the game in which the Hustlers got to Finney Kelley for 13 hits in rallies and won 7 to 2. King was very wild but effective with men on base.

SIDELINE SLANTS

The crowd was "pulling" for "Muff."

"Paddy" Kane made a good stab of Rawlings hard hit drive in the second. He ran back to the track in center and nailed it.

Stair was sent to the bench for talking to the "ump." "Bill" kicked on Mumford's pitching. The hurler stood with his left foot twelve inches behind the rubber on each pitch. Kicking is of no avail with McAtee, whether there is justification or not.

"Bill" Clay offered to trade outfielder Klein for "Paddy" Kane. Perhaps he meant it for a joke. "Bill" was presented with a bouquet and he is welcome to the flowers but no gifts of that sort, unless there is a wagon load of "boot."

Sutton, the former Mt. St. Mary's player will report for today's game. "Dutch" Weimer will also be on the field.

"Johnny" Myers has signed a

Chambersburg contract and played his first game with the Maroons at Hanover yesterday. He put up a fine game. Strasbaugh was released Tuesday.

George Miller wants to leave Friday for his home. He will be suspended by Manager Plank, but not released.

"Country" Morris has an evenly balanced club, which no doubt accounts for their spurt in the league race.

Babylonians Feared Ghosts.

In a lecture on "Burial Customs in Mesopotamia and Egypt" Dr. L. W. King, F. S. A., said the spirit which animated the Egyptians in their varied and changing practices toward the dead was based on affection and reverence, but the Babylonian, in the main, was prompted by fear. The Babylonians were probably more spook ridden than any other nation of antiquity, and their magical texts made it clear that the most terrible class of spirits were the ghosts of the dead, who for some reason had been unable to enter the underworld. Driven by hunger and thirst, such a ghost might roam about and fasten on any one with whom it had had relations in this life, and it would plague him until he performed the rites that could give it peace. It was mainly to lay the ghost and prevent it from "haunting" that the Babylonians were scrupulous in performing the due burial rites.—London Times.

The cedars are almost all gone from Lebanon, according to John D. Whiting of Jerusalem, writing in the National Geographic Magazine. There are few more of these majestic trees in Europe and America than on their native mountains.

TO HELP MEN ON GOOD ROADS DAY

Women Suffragists Will Supply Lunches to All Volunteer Workers

BELIEVE IN BETTERMENTS

And Will Prove It With Lunch Baskets When the Noon Whistle Blows

Harrisburg, May 17.—Pennsylvania's women suffragists will do their part to assure the State-wide success of "Good Roads Day" on May 26th. They will provide refreshment to all the hungry and blistered male citizens who wield shovel and pick that day in the interests of better public roads. In every township where the masculine population turns out for "road duty," a band of the local suffragists will be on hand with baskets of sandwiches and buckets of cooling draughts. And whether "pro" or "anti" in his beliefs on "votes for women," each individual worker will find a smiling suffragist ready to cater to the inner man when the noon whistle blows.

The story of the suffragists' desire to help in the improvement of the public highways is best told, perhaps, in the letter which has just been sent to their County and City Chairmen by Miss Hannah J. Patterson, State Chairman of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Party. In this letter Miss Patterson says:

"The Governor has fixed May 26th as a State-wide Good Roads Day, and has called upon men, women and children to help. As all suffragists are deeply interested in the development of Pennsylvania, this opportunity to co-operate in the improvement of the State will appeal to all our women.

"The State Highways Department suggests that the best way for the women to help is in providing lunches for the workers along the highway. Will you please appoint a committee to confer with the township roads supervisors as to how to best co-operate in your immediate location.

"The State Highways Department further says: 'You needn't cook a great big dinner; you needn't make a great basket full of sandwiches; you needn't brew a dozen gallons of tea or coffee. But you can furnish a ham, several loaves of bread, buckets of cool spring water with dippers in them, and you and the children can carry this to the nearest point beneath the shade trees along the road at the noon hour and call the workers from their toil to partake of refreshments.'

"As the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Association has active local organizations in every county in the State and as the members of these locals are intensely interested in all propositions that tend to bring about civic, county or State improvements, it is assured that there will be a big response on the part of the women to the call for their co-operation on Good Roads Day. Judging from the early responses already received at State Headquarters, none of the men who help repair the public roads that day need worry about where their lunch is coming from.

A DEFINITION

Equal suffrage: "An improvement based upon justice, counsel, and wisdom and justified by the results."

Restrained Indignation.

Uncle Henry Barnes was a mild man, but when John Ragland deliberately cheated him out of $300, even his patient spirit was ruffled. "Some time," he remarked to his wife, "I'm going to tell that man what I think of him." One day he came home highly satisfied with himself. "I saw John Ragland today, and I told him straight out what I thought of him," he said. "What did he say?" asked his wife. "I told him I thought he was a very unreasonable man."

Sleeping Car Ventilation.

The lower berth in a sleeping car is stuffy with the windows closed, and if you open the window the cold air is directly on you. It is thought that the riding public would appreciate some deflector or diffusing construction which could be applied to the open window over the usual short hinged screen and permit the entry of fresh air, at the same time preventing it from blowing directly on the passenger in the berth.

Nationalism in Literature.

"The process of reading is not a half sleep, but, in the highest sense, an exercise, a gymnast's struggle." A civilization in which thinking is not athletic, and feeling not intense, is a civilization without the fire of life. Nationalism in literature, therefore, requires that the infant industry be protected, but not at the expense of its vitality. We must conspire for our Mark Twains, our Stephen Crane, our O. Henrys, our Finley Dunnes, our Sarah Orne Jewetts, our George Ade. But to vindicate these real interpreters is not our sole concern. Against our false interpreters and their subservient public, we must, if we are to have a true literature in America, stand destructive and irreconcilable.—The New Republic.

A Pickpocket's Trick

"What puzzles me," said a well dressed man to a police captain to whom he had complained that a roll of bills had been taken from his trousers pocket in a subway car, "is how the thief got the money, since I never felt his hand in my pocket."

To which the official replied: "Let me explain. As soon as the thief had completed his preliminary work to satisfy your pocket he set to work to get it out. But he didn't put his hand in your pocket. This is what he did. He took hold of the lining of your pocket with his thumb and index finger, and when the car lurched or jolted he pulled the lining up a little more until finally the edge of the bill came in sight. As soon as enough of the bill had appeared to enable him to get a grip on it he carefully plucked it out of your pocket, and you never knew the difference. It appears simple, but it requires considerable skill."—New York Sun.

CALIFORNIA ROADS.

In his book "At the End of the Trail" E. A. Powell, F. R. G. S., says the following tribute to California road building:

"I am convinced that if the several thousand Americans who go on annual motor trips through Europe, either taking their cars with them or hiring them on the other side, could only be made to realize that on the edge of the western ocean they can find roads as smooth and well built as the English highways or the routes nationales of France, and mountains as high and sublimely beautiful as the Alps or the Pyrenees, and scenery more varied and lovely than is to be found between Christiania and Capri, and vegetation as luxuriant and hotels more luxurious than on the Cote d'Azur, and a milder, sunnier, more equable climate than anywhere else on the globe, they would come pouring out in such numbers that there wouldn't be garages enough to hold their cars."
